

13 Νοεμβρίου 2016

We should see the error (Saint Diadochus of Photice)

Ξένες γλώσσες / In English

Image not found or type unknown

The

light of true knowledge is to be able to tell the difference, without error, between good and evil. Then the path of virtue, leading the intellect to God, the Sun of Righteousness, brings it into the infinite light of knowledge, so that it now seeks love openly and boldly. So with vehemence, though not anger, we should snatch what's right from those who dare to belittle it and trample on it. Because zeal for proper devotion fights and wins not through hatred but through rebuke.