A wild animal (Saint Nectarios of Pentapolis)

Ξένες γλώσσες / In English

People who don't contain their anger are like wild, untamed animals which can't be controlled. No storm whipped up by the wind and crashing onto the rocks is as violent as the rage of a choleric person. People who are easily incensed are also inflexible, ruthless and unfeeling. Their hearts are boiling with rage and the flame is kept alive by fury.
