Don't restrict your children's education and upbringing to secular wisdom, to the wisdom of this world. They should, at the same time, learn the wisdom that comes from above and the highest form of truth. They should learn the law of God and the commandments of Christ. They should learn all due reverence, the constant remembrance of God and the proper Christian path. Only then will your children not be lost in the ways of human wisdom, only then will they always hold Christian wisdom above all else, the knowledge of God. This is the way we should bring up our children.
