

All work is good (Elder Iakovos Tsalikis)

Ξένες γλώσσες / In English

Image not found or type unknown

So long as we work for our bread, it doesn't matter what our job is. Of Adam's sons, one was a farmer the other a herdsman. All occupations are good, so long as we remain close to God. Saint Paul, in order not to eat bread without having earned it, worked with his hands. He made tents. And the great saints of our Church also worked. Christ Himself also worked in a carpenter's shop. He was God and Human, but He still worked. Work is always a virtue for people.