

The desire for the absolute (Saint Nectarios of Pentapolis)

Ξένες γλώσσες / In English

Image not found or type unknown

Really free people are true images of God, since they're a moral image of Him. Their will is identical with that of God, which is written in their heart as the moral law and placed there as a desire for absolute good. They always think about what's good, what's pleasing to God and what's perfect. Their desires are holy and their yearnings pure. Their heart loves God and their soul longs and yearns for Him.