They succeed one another (Archimandrite Zacharias Zacharou)

Ξένες γλώσσες / In English

A monk is suspended between two indescribable conditions: of ineffable bliss when his souls is plunged into the Spirit of God; and of great sorrow over the salvation of the world. These conditions succeed one another. A monk loves God and with God's love loves the world.