It's become a bad habit (Saint Luke the Doctor)

Ξένες γλώσσες / In English

We aren't concerned with our own faults and sins, but we find plenty of transgressions in others. We fish them out and when we do so we make sure everyone hears about them. It's become a bad habit now that, as soon as we hear something bad about somebody else, we go and spread it abroad. Our tongue burns and we hurry away to tell other people what we've heard and seen.
