Turkey's dwindling Greek Christians

Ξένες γλώσσες / In English

(CNN) — Patriarch Bartholomew is the living embodiment of one of the world's oldest institutions — the Greek Orthodox Church in Constantinople.

But he could be the last to hold the title in what is modern-day Istanbul, in secular but Muslim majority Turkey.

CNN's «World's Untold Stories» examines the dwindling Greek Orthodox community in Turkey and how they are faring.
